Empowering the Client-in-charge to improve daily life - II

We explored this topic already last year and it is so interesting that it is on the agenda again. What can we learn as client in co-counselling from Carol Dweck when she talks about the 'Growth Mind Set'. We can ask the same question about the 'Solution focused approach' in coaching.

During the Conference we will adopt the 'Co-operative enquiry' method developed by John Heron and Peter Reason. We will experiment upon ourselves with the different suggestions from traditional co-counselling, the 'Growth Mind set and the 'Solution focused approach'.

The sharing of our experiences will deepen our Self Understanding and help us be more effective as Co-workers supporting others to serve themselves well as clients. As usual for the McCoCo Conference this sharing will result into a report to the coco community at large, published on CoCoInfo.

The conference will take place the 3 May 2015 and Lilian Brzoska will host it in her house in Kirkcaldy, near Edinburgh.

Since 2011 we organise the McCoCo Conference the day after McCoCo so that its participants can easily attend as well, This will be the fourth one.

In 2011 the theme was What can we learn from 'Haus Kloppenburg' as a Co-Counselling Business Model?

In 2012: 'Empowerment and the Empowering the Client to be in Charge of the session.'

in 2013: 'Supporting the networking among co-counsellors', among others about CoCo Open Space in 2014: 'What situations are critical in the client and counsellor roles?'

in 2015 'Empowering the Client-in caharge to improve daily life'
